Background & Purpose

South African has a growing appetite for Aquaculture, purely from a point of view of its potential in boosting economic development. This among other reasons, will be a solution to high unemployment and also provide sustainable alternative livelihoods to the Eastern Cape rural economic development. Fisheries production from wild capture fisheries has stagnated in recent years (FAO, 2016) while global population numbers, and overall consumption of fish, is increasing. Aquaculture will therefore play a significant role in providing much needed animal protein to feed future generations.

Aquaculture development forms part of the identified delivery units for Oceans Economy of the Eastern Cape. This project has a potential to create opportunities for rural economic development and economic development of the Mhlontlo Municipality - Eastern Cape Province also for the realization of the recently launched Ocean Economy programme for the province. Aquaculture has been identified as one of the key sectors with a huge potential to provide opportunities for job creation and bringing the much-needed economic development to poverty and unemployment-stricken areas of the country. The Aquaculture industry in South Africa is still relatively small in the global space but has shown growth potential and could contribute meaningfully to the country's gross domestic product (GDP).

Although a number of studies have been conducted on Aquaculture, most of these have focused on the scientific efficacy of the Tilapia species. Research and Economic feasibility studies are an important component of the development of the industry for the benefit of socioeconomic for rural development of the underdeveloped areas. Feasibility studies when conducted properly can guide economic investment in order to ensure that:

- The most suitable species to culture and its benefits thereof;
- Practical financial models are developed
- Business plans are bankable and well developed
- Stakeholders are aware of the respective roles
- Proper implementation plans are in place
- Implementation and Technology transfer
- Monitoring and evaluation mechanisms are well suited to the identified goals

This will in turn help to avoid the problem of misguided investment that results in creation of unsustainable projects. Hence the need for comprehensive feasibility study and should in essence take the following into consideration:

- Prevailing macro and micro economic factors surrounding the envisaged work
- The presence of markets for the envisaged products
- The Technical viability of the undertaking
- Economic and financial merits of the project
 - Scenario planning and sensitivity analysis

The feasibility study will also assess the viability of a typical aquaculture venture as it depends on

- suitable environmental conditions to support production;
- availability of seed stock;
- access to feeds and production technology;
- access to equipment and supplies;
- access to markets;
- access to health management services, consultants and technical services

- a supportive regulatory environment that facilitates aquaculture development; and
- public acceptance of the environmental impacts associated with aquaculture development and production.

In addition, the feasibility study should assess on a variety of aquaculture systems including:

- Aquaponics.
- Recirculation Aquaculture Systems
- Flow through land-based system
- Pond culture
- Raceway

Therefore, it is important to priorities on a feasibility study to identify suitable location, site characteristics, environmental parameters, available technologies, financial and other necessary resources, environmental impacts, market opportunities and risk factors. The Municipality can therefore use the findings of the feasibility study to make informed decisions for an aquaculture project to support the economy of the area through utilisation of available resources and determination of the return on the investment.

CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

- 1 This Municipal Bidding Document (MBD) must form part of all bids¹ invited.
- 2 Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging).² Collusive bidding is a pe se prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.
- 3 Municipal Supply Regulation 38 (1) prescribes that a supply chain management policy must provide measures for the combating of abuse of the supply chain management system, and must enable the accounting officer, among others, to:
 - a. take all reasonable steps to prevent such abuse;
 - b. reject the bid of any bidder if that bidder or any of its directors has abused the supply chain management system of the municipality or municipal entity or has committed any improper conduct in relation to such system; and
 - c. cancel a contract awarded to a person if the person committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of the contract.
- 4 This MBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.
- 5 In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (MBD 9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

² Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.
